

FRANCE PLEDGES SUPPORT TO ECONOMIC SANCTIONS, JOINS BRITAIN IN MOVE TO ISOLATE DEFIANT DUCE

TWO DEAL RULINGS EXPECTED TODAY IN SUPREME COURT

Processing Levy, Right of Condemnation for Slum Clearance Plans Decisions Anticipated in Washington Circles.

MILL FIRM SEEKS TO SPEED ACTION

Georgia Suit on Bankhead Act May Cause Delay in Earlier Case on AAA Constitutionality.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Government lawyers looked toward the supreme court tomorrow for two important announcements in the broadening legal battle over the New Deal.

Of primary interest is the ruling expected from the justices on a conflict over the date for hearing the Home Mills case involving the validity of farm processing taxes.

The court also may announce whether it will add to the docket the fourth case in the present term testing New Deal legislation—this one involving the right to condemn land for slum clearance projects.

Solicitor-General Stanley Reed asked the tribunal last week to hear the AAA case about November 20. Counsel for the milling firm countered with a proposal to set the case for oral argument not earlier than December 9.

Early Decision Sought. The government is known to be anxious to have it argued in November so that the court's decision can be available before congress returns. Then, if the present taxes are ruled out, the administration will be in a position to propose new levies to finance benefits to farmers participating in crop reduction programs.

The justices considered the speed of the current processing tax receipts. Up to October 24, the treasury had received only $40,245,000 in the current fiscal year against $170,507,182 in the comparable period last year.

A third reason why whispered is that the government would like to see the AAA's validity brought to a head before a case involving the Bankhead cotton control act is tried. The position of the Bankhead case on the calendar, ordinarily coming in December, although there may be efforts to postpone it, especially if the court should grant Georgia's request to bring an original suit contesting the same law.

Louisville Ruling. The slum-clearance issue arose from a decision of the Cincinnati circuit court upholding a Louisville ordinance that no power resides in the national government to condemn the property of a city for the purposes for which it is intended.

Insisting it should be permitted to exercise the right of eminent domain in acquiring property for housing projects, the government has asked the high tribunal to set aside the views of the lower courts.

The justices consented to review the Bankhead act case last spring, and they docketed the AAA case and one

Dies of Heart Attack

JUDGE WILLIAM GRUBB.

JUDGE W. I. GRUBB DIES IN ALABAMA

Heart Attack Fatal To Noted Federal Jurist, Who Was in 74th Year.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Judge William I. Grubb, who presided over the northern Alabama United States district court for more than 25 years, died at his home here today of a heart attack.

Although he had not been in prime health for many months, Judge Grubb remained active on the bench and only yesterday had presided in a case involving the utility of the Belcher Lumber Company.

He was the first federal judge to hold the NRA unconstitutional, so ruling in a consent case in sustaining demurrers in the Belcher Lumber Company case.

Early this year, after an extended hearing he held the electrification program of the Tennessee Valley Authority unconstitutional in a suit brought by a group of preferred shareholders of the Alabama Power Company to prevent the utility from selling certain of its properties to TVA.

He was in good spirits and improved health as he left for his home. When struck, Judge Grubb was wearing his coat to accompany Mrs. Grubb to church. He died within a few minutes.

Judge Grubb was appointed to the federal bench by the late President William Howard Taft on May 18, 1909. On the occasion of his 25th anniversary on the bench, when the Alabama bar honored the occasion with appropriate ceremonies Judge Grubb said he had no intention of retiring, expressing the wish "to die on the bench and remain active to the end."

Frequently Honored. The Department of Justice had conferred other marked distinctions upon him.

Judge Grubb was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on March 8, 1862. He was graduated from the academic department of the University of Cincinnati in 1885 and then studied law at Cincinnati University.

He came to Birmingham in 1888 and began the practice of law, continuing until he was appointed to the federal bench.

On June 18, 1906, he married Alice

Canon Turner Takes Winston-Salem Pulpit

Canon William S. Turner, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, has accepted a call to become rector of St. Paul's church in Winston-Salem, N. C., it was learned yesterday.

Canon Turner, associated at St. Philip since 1930, said last night he will move to Winston-Salem about December 15. He will be accompanied by his wife and infant son.

For the last three years, in addition to his work at St. Philip, he has been rector of the Church of Our Savior on Highland avenue. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 1, 1930, soon after his graduation from the theological school of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., and has lived here since.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—To the sentimentalists amongst us, the peril of the moment is that we may run out of these something-or-other weeks. You know, weeks dedicated to hay fever or sanitary plumbing or ankle-length union suits or anemic Armenians. You see, we only have 52 weeks to start with.

The surest way to spoil a good thing is to overdo it. That also goes for salad dressings, four-pants suits, rice pudding and the young thing who puts so much make-up on her eye lashes she looks as though she were peeping out through two buttonholes in an old plush vest.

Any party could gain a lot of votes by inserting a plank in its platform calling for just one plain, old-fashioned week starting without excitement on a Monday and ending very quietly the following Sunday.

On second thought, that would not do at all. Some calendar tinkers would be sure to name it Solomon Grundy Week and start organizing special exercises.

DEATH TOLL HITS TWO THOUSAND IN HAITIAN STORM

Bodies of Missing Feared Washed Out to Sea as Streams Reach Record Heights Under Rainfall

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 27.

(AP)—Official sources estimated tonight at least 2,000 persons are dead or missing as a result of the hurricane that swept over the southern peninsula last week-end. The bodies of most of the missing were feared to have been washed out to sea, as streams in the deep river valleys roared to record heights under the impetus of torrential downpours.

Villages and thatch huts of natives along these streams were believed to have been swept away, with the floods completing the destruction begun by the raging hurricane blasts.

Much of the force of last week's hurricane, however, apparently hit the peninsula that juts out in the Caribbean sea from the southwest of Haiti.

150-Mile Extension. The arm of land extends approximately 150 miles from the mainland. Jeremie is near the tip of the peninsula, on the north side, where the canal is on the southern edge, near the mainland.

Only fragmentary reports of the destruction wrought in the two cities of Jeremie and Jacmel were available. First reports said a bridge was destroyed over the Grande Anse river near Jeremie, while the Volcrose and Roseau rivers rose over crops along the banks.

The hydro-electric plant at Jacmel was destroyed, reports said, with the population forced to begin the work of rehabilitation without light or water.

Telegraphic communication with Cayes has been re-established, and reports said damage to the city was not serious, although food crops suffered.

Heavy Rainfall. Heavy rains accompanied the hurricane forcing all streams far out of their banks. The peninsula area has been isolated since Monday. The Jeremie region was the hardest hit, according to official statements.

Bodies of 90 victims already have been recovered at Jacmel.

First estimates yesterday placed the number of dead at possibly 1,000, but officials said tonight they were forced to alter their figures, as later reports came in from the stricken sections.

Prison Association Officials Confer Here

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Standing pat on its isolationist policy toward foreign disputes, the United States was disclosed today to have based its League of Nations communication on two fundamental principles.

These objectives, charted before Italy-Ethiopian hostilities began in East Africa, were outlined by an authoritative source as:

1. The preservation of peace.
2. A determination to keep out of war once it starts.

Favorable initial reaction in both Rome and Geneva was attributed to some quarters here to the extreme care with which Secretary Hull drafted his reply to the League's invitation for comment on its program of sanctions against Italy.

Affirming to the League this nation's position of independent neutrality, the American communication expressed "sympathetic interest" in the efforts of other nations to halt war. The reference was general rather than specific.

PEACE SOLUTION SUITABLE TO DUCE SOUGHT BY LAVAL

Italian Troops Push Forward in Ethiopia and Are Expected To Reach City of Makale Today.

ROME, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini's armies trudged deeper into Africa tonight, even as Europe's statesmen juggled "amicable" settlements of his war on Ethiopia.

Premier Laval of France, the peace-maker, still was reported seeking an arrangement to give Italy land and economic rights in Ethiopia and safety for new frontiers.

But Il Duce went ahead to take the land and appropriate the rights, looking after his own protection.

When the 14th anniversary of the fascist march on Rome is celebrated tomorrow, Italian troops are expected to be parading on Makale, the next important objective of the northern invasion.

Their second big advance began yesterday. Dispatches said native Eritrean troops had occupied two more towns in a determined southward drive.

Will Combat Sanctions. At home, Il Duce warned in ringing tones his country would respond with "heroisms" to sanctions, which he termed the "most odious of injustices."

Today he sighted the billions of lire in gold he needs for his war. Financial experts said his huge 61-270,000,000 lire, 5 per cent conversion loan was half subscribed and was certain to yield him 10,000,000,000 lire (about $800,000,000) in fresh money which fascist leaders have estimated as the eventual total cost of the conflict.

Time at Work for Italy. Well-informed, but unofficial, quarters said time, the great physician, was working for Italy in four ways.

1. When there is a "settlement," Italy expects to have a firm grasp on what she wants, and it then will be only a question of accepting what she has accomplished.

2. Sanctions, these sources asserted, look each day more like unwanted children of bickering parents who are likely to leave them on Great Britain's doorstep.

3. Ethiopia allegedly is disintegrating. "Hundreds" of chiefs and "thousands" of warriors, Italians claim, have joined the fascists in both the north and south.

4. The world, these Italian observers

FRANCE TO BACK PROTECTION NAVY

French Cabinet Accepts Invitation to 5-Power London Conference.

By RALPH HEINZEN.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

PARIS, Oct. 27.—(UP)—France will launch a campaign in December for a naval conference to discuss the navy's protection of the world's sea lanes.

The cabinet unofficially has agreed to accept the British invitation to a meeting December 2 and naval experts have been put to work on a French program which shapes up along these lines:

1. Oppose suppression of submarines.
2. Reduce maximum tonnage of big ships.
3. Reduce maximum caliber of big guns.

Less Expense Sought. 4. Make navies easier on sorely tried budgets by limiting the size of individual ships and total tonnage.

5. Avoid in the December conference any discussion of Italy-French or Japanese-United States naval parity proposals due to international tension because of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

France wants the December meet-

Navy League Leader Attacks Talmadge

One thousand dollars will be presented to Governor Talmadge's "favorite" charity "if the Governor can show Navy Day is a racket," Nelson Macy, president of the Navy League of the United States, told The Constitution yesterday in a telegram from Hot Springs, Ark.

Governor Talmadge declined Saturday to issue a Navy Day proclamation. Macy's telegram said:

"Local papers say Governor Eugene Talmadge has refused to make Navy Day a national holiday. It suggests a kind of racket. If the Governor can show Navy Day is a racket I will present his favorite charity with $1,000. He has gratuitously offended thousands of patriotic men and women who give their money and unselfish services to the Navy League and want to return but an adequate navy for national defense."

(Signed) "NELSON MACY," President, the Navy League of the United States.

Day's Developments In Ethiopian Crisis

WITH THE DIPLOMATS—France informs League she accepts economic sanctions against Italy; League quarters see United States reply as approving concerted action to end war.

Italians says Duce taking what peace-makers would give; French believe application of drastic economic penalties unavoidable.

Authoritative Washington sources say United States League note based on preservation of peace, determination to keep out of war.

WITH THE FIGHTERS—Unconfirmed reports say 100 Ethiopians killed many wounded, in attempt to ford river in northwestern Ethiopia and storm Eritrean block-houses.

Big offensive on today's anniversary of fascist march on Rome hinted; second push starts for northern invaders.

Southern Italian fighters split into three columns, threaten Goro-hei; radio station there may be disabled by bombs.

Fifty thousand warriors eat raw meat in Addis Ababa but Selassie abstains, sips tea.

ITALIANS DRIVING TOWARD MAKALE

Military Roads Already Extended in Anticipation of Awaited Push.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES ON THE NORTHERN FRONT, VIA ASMAR, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Combined detachment of blackshirts and native Askaris drove the spearhead of the long-awaited Italian drive toward Makale deep into Ethiopian territory today.

The left wing of the Italian forces, consolidated in a block of occupied territory 25 miles deep and 65 miles across, now projects in a long arm toward the Ethiopian stronghold where a stiff battle is expected.

General Diamante's blackshirts and a detachment of Askaris from General Alessandro Pirzio-Biroli's column thrust the Italian advance guard from Mount Samait 10 miles to Adi Ne-fas. In the absence of word from the advancing forces to the contrary, it was assumed no serious resistance had been encountered.

Local officials in the district have submitted in large numbers, clearing the way for many miles toward Makale. Aerial reconnaissance has indicated no serious concentrations of Ethiopians this side of the Ethiopian town where Ras Siyoum is expected to put up a battle.

Obstacles to the advance were natural rather than human. The drive began at the foot of Mount Samait, which towers 9,000 feet, and proceeded over the most difficult terrain to Adi Ne-fas.

The movement southward indicated the international situation does not hinder military operations, despite indications during the last few days that diplomatic factors at home were all that held up the continued march into northern Ethiopia.

(Apparently Miller believed that prospects of serious diplomatic negotiations to end the Italo-Ethiopian conflict peacefully had restrained the Italian high command in East Africa. His guarded phraseology may be explained by the fact, source dispatches must pass through censorship at Asmara and Rome.)

Meanwhile, it was reported with-out confirmation that 900 Ethiopians were killed and many wounded Saturday night in a determined effort to

PARIS AND LONDON ARRIVE AT ACCORD ON TRADE BOYCOTT

French Acceptance of Plan for Penalties Communicated to Geneva; Program Calls for Exportation Regulation.

GENEVA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—France notified the League of Nations today she has accepted economic sanctions against Italy.

Thus she joined Great Britain in a drive to isolate Benito Mussolini because he has made war on Ethiopia.

France Accepts Sanctions. Both France and Britain now have announced their readiness to enforce the most powerful sanction—an economic boycott of Italy—by agreeing to buy nothing from the fascist state and by stopping the exportation to Italy of certain key products, especially those needed in the manufacture of armaments, munitions and implements of war.

Premier Pierre Laval telegraphed the French acceptance of economic sanctions. He informed League officials these would be applied on the date to be fixed by the League, but asked four days' time to take the necessary steps.

The League's "general staff" of 52 nations meets Thursday to set the date for application of economic sanctions.

Siam Joins Others. The United States reply to the League invitation for an expression on its action against Italy also reached Geneva. Hugh Wilson, the American envoy, delivered it to the League secretariat.

In the form of a communication from Secretary of State Hull to Augustus De Vasconcellos, chairman of the League's committee of experts, the note created a distinct sensation.

Special significance was attached to the closing sentence: "It (the United States) views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace and to localize and shorten the duration of war."

Guatemala also accepted all five League sanctions today, and Siam accepted the arms embargo.

Five Persons Killed In 2 Plane Crashes

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Five persons were killed Sunday in two airplane crashes in California.

Pilot Ralph Wagner, 37, and Jack Kelger, 30, a passenger, were burned to death when their monoplane motor faltered at low altitude and the craft plunged to earth near a crowded seashore boulevard, at Manhattan Beach.

The pilot managed to lift his ship's nose to miss the thoroughfare and the plane crashed, nose downward, into a vacant lot.

Three died in another crash near Niles. The dead were Harry Perry, 25, pilot and owner of the plane; William Rose, 31, and Joe Bernardino, 41, of Centerville, Cal.

Their plane crashed in a plowed field.

BREACH OF FAITH LAID TO PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Has Failed To Keep Promises, K. of C. Charges in Letter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus in a letter to President Roosevelt released today charged he had failed to keep a promise to enunciate a protest against Mexico's attitude toward religion.

"You advised our committee," the letter said of a conference with the President in July, "that in your opinion a public statement by you, expressing the attitude of our government concerning conditions in Mexico, would help to bring about a change in those conditions."

"You assured our committee that you would take advantage of your first public address for that purpose."

The President's speech at San Diego, Cal., October 2 proclaiming America's belief in the right to free worship was not acceptable as fulfillment of this assurance, the letter asserted, because Mexico and asserted conditions there were not specifically mentioned.

Further, the letter charged, the President stifled a resolution by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, authorizing an investigation of conditions in Mexico.

PROMINENT MINISTER, REV. J. I. OXFORD, DIES

Aged Pastor Was Member of Mission Board of Georgia.

The Rev. J. I. Oxford, widely known Baptist minister, for 15 years a member of the Baptist Mission Board of Georgia and former trustee of Mercer University and Bessie Tift College, died early yesterday morning at Georgia Baptist hospital. He was 82 years old.

Dr. Oxford was injured in a fall a week ago at his home, 1591 Gordon street, S. W. Complications which developed were said to be the cause of death.

The minister was active in ministerial work for 43 years in Georgia and Arkansas. During this time he served as pastor of 14 churches. He was instrumental in the building of eight churches and three schools. For a number of years he was financial secretary of the Baptist Tabernacle during their campaign to lift a mortgage from the building.

Retiring from active ministerial work seven years ago, he had taken an active part in the religious world, filling the pulpit of a number of churches as guest pastor. He was a member of the Gordon Street Baptist church at the time of his death.

Dr. Oxford's first wife, the former Miss Katharine Thompson, of Fairburn, died in 1910. Later he married Mrs. Josephine Wallace, of Atlanta. She survives him.

Besides his wife, he is survived by the following children of his first marriage: Mrs. S. L. Prichard, Mrs. Katharine White, W. E. Oxford, G. T. Oxford, Clifford Oxford and Paul Oxford; grandchildren, Mrs. G. T. Smith, Miss Katharine White, Miss Harriet Prichard, Clifford Oxford Jr. and James Guyton Oxford.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes with Dr. Louis D. Newton and Dr. W. H. Faust officiating.

An honorary escort will be formed, consisting of Atlanta Baptist ministers. Burial will be in West View cemetery. Pallbearers will be John Hudson, Eugene Oxford, Will McLean, Harry Truett, Ed Redd and John Tankersley.

MANUFACTURERS' BODY SEEKS PAST NRA DATA

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers' announced today appointment of a committee to study industry's relation to government since the voiding of NRA by the supreme court.

James M. Hook, of New Haven, Conn., (president of the Geometric Tool Company) is chairman of the committee which will submit its report to the annual congress of American Industry in New York December 4.

C. L. Bardo, president of the Manufacturers' Association, said the committee already has begun preliminary study. Bardo expressed belief "virtually no sentiment exists among either large or small manufacturers for a new attempt by the federal government to regulate local industrial operations."

Huge Ship Will Undergo Series of Tests Before Entering Service.

Piloting the 25-ton flying boat on its seven-hour, 1,200-mile hop from Baltimore was Captain Edwin O. Musick, who flew the first regularly scheduled plane from Key West to Havana, Cuba, October 28, 1927.

The landing here was at 3:01 p. m. (E. S. T.), the take-off from Baltimore unofficially timed at 7:17 a. m. Captain Musick and his crew of four, all Miamians, expect to start shakedown flights immediately to get the newest and biggest of the clipper ships ready for the start of regular air mail service from California to China, scheduled next month.

DR. AUBREY HESS DIES IN CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

Pastor of United Liberal Church Here Was En Route to Conference.

Dr. Aubrey F. Hess, widely known pastor of the United Liberal Church at 687 West Peachtree street, died yesterday morning in the lobby of the Waller hotel at Clarksburg, West Virginia.

He was en route from the general convention of the Universalist church, which he had attended last week in Washington, D. C., to the biennial conference of the Unitarian church in Cincinnati, Ohio. With him were his wife and young child.

Dr. Hess was widely known as an educator as well as a minister. He was a former president of Adrian College, at Adrian, Mich.; former president of West Lafayette College at West Lafayette, Ohio, and had served as a professor at the University of West Virginia and the University of Missouri.

He had been pastor of the church here for five years, coming to Atlanta from the First Congregational church of Beaumont, Texas.

Dr. Hess was a graduate of the University of West Virginia and of Randolph-Macon College. He later received a master's degree from the Westminster Theological Seminary and a degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Missouri.

During the World War he participated in the Liberty loan campaigns and was cited by President Woodrow Wilson as one of the best 100 Liberty loan orators of the nation.

He was a 32d degree Mason. Surviving are his wife; two sons, Bob Hess, organist at the Capitol Theater, and Adrian Hess, of Detroit, Mich.; and two daughters, Mrs. E. G. Whitney, of St. Augustine, Fla., and Miss Jean Hess, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held here, with arrangements to be announced.

Physician Blames Public Apathy For Premature Deaths in Country

Dr. C. Jeff Miller, Tulane University Gynecologist, Hits Individuals' Attitude at Congress of American College of Surgeons, Meeting in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Public apathy toward physical welfare was blamed today by Dr. C. Jeff Miller, Tulane University gynecologist, for unnecessary suffering and premature death among Americans.

Dr. Miller said it was a "lamentable fact" that the accomplishments of health boards, sanitary organizations and philanthropic bodies had been achieved "with little or no co-operation from the individual."

His remarks were contained in a statement on the progress of medicine and surgery, issued on the eve of the annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. Robert B. Greenough, retiring president of the organization, reported that cancer remained "the same baffling scourge that it always has been; with a rising mortality rate and with more and more surgical, medical and industrial agencies being drawn into the never-ending battle against it."

He said there still was "much ballyhoo regarding so-called cancer cures which have not stood the test of experimental study for a sufficient time to make them valuable."

Dr. Miller said medical science had more than trebled the life span of the average citizen in the past four centuries, adding six years to that span in the past 20.

"Yet," he continued, "people still object to being vaccinated against smallpox and typhoid. He said the public would not take full advantage of diphtheria and scarlet fever tests or protective methods."

"Whose fault is it," he asked, "that the United States has earned loss of 2,500,000 working days each year and school children more than 1,500,000 days because of sickness?"

"Whose fault is it that hospitals and physicians' offices are crowded with men and women suffering from degenerative diseases, due in great part to faulty hygiene or to inadequate treatment of previous diseases, many of them preventable?"

"Whose is the responsibility for the thousands of cases of smallpox annually in the United States, and that this nation still stands in the position of having each year more smallpox cases than any country except Russia and India?"

"The fault is largely that of the public. It is a personal as well as a community duty that each citizen should make use of the opportunities that lie at his door, and that he now so recklessly ignores."

GARNER, SOLONS ARRIVE IN JAPAN

Liner Carrying U. S. Officials to Manila Is Day Ahead of Schedule.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Oct. 28.—(Monday)—(AP)—Vice President John Nance Garner, highest ranking American official ever to visit Japan, arrived at this gateway to the orient this morning on his way to Manila to attend the inauguration of Manuel Quezon as first president of the Philippines commonwealth, set for November 15.

The liner President Grant, carrying the vice president and a large delegation of members of both houses of congress, made port at Yokohama nearly a day ahead of her schedule.

Tomorrow morning the vice president and Joseph W. Byrnes, speaker of the house of representatives, are to be received in audience at the imperial palace in Tokyo by the 124th emperor of Japan, Hirohito. They will be accompanied by Edwin L. Neville, charge d'affaires of the American embassy in the absence of Ambassador Joseph C. Crew, on furlough.

Photographs of the pastors in their pulpits and stories of their services will appear on succeeding Mondays.

"Don't Fail in Your Home," Pastor Warns

DR. J. W. JOHNSON.

Failure in the Home, Pastor Says, Is Worst Failure Life Can Hold

Editor's Note—This is the first in a series on Atlanta pastors and their messages. Photographs of the pastors in their pulpits and stories of their services will appear on succeeding Mondays.

Failure in the home, according to Dr. J. W. Johnson, is the worst failure that can be experienced. This was the lesson in his sermon yesterday morning, delivered in St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church. He said, in part:

The Bible relates everything to God. People in Biblical times were taught to recognize God as the giver of the harvest, and they were to bring the first fruits to the altar before they harvested for themselves. They were taught that their ability to get wealth was from the Lord. Far back in the centuries, when patriarchs raised their tents, they also reared an altar to God. Surely if the blessing of heaven is to rest upon our households, all we achieve in life, it should rest upon the home, for that is the most important undertaking in life, and the most delicate task for the hands of the father and mother.

Failure here is the greatest failure that can come in life. I do not care how successful one may be in this world, if he does not succeed in his home, he is a failure. There are more far-reaching consequences in a failure of the home than anywhere else. Failure in business is bad, as it may bring the pinch of poverty, but it cannot be compared with failure of the home.

Cross Saves Ruins. I have read somewhere that there was a time when one of the most important ruins in Rome was being destroyed by tourists taking away stones from it. One of the popes to save it erected a cross to sanctify it. After having been made holy, it remained untouched thereafter.

There are a thousand influences which are invading the home, seeking to destroy it, filching its treasures, stealing its sweetness and beauty, and nothing can save the home today but the erection of the cross therein.

Yes, our homes should be related to God. Think first of the atmosphere of the home. The parents are the creators of that atmosphere. Take the mother, she is the highest representative of God to the little child. Someone has said of the true Christian mother that she is the builder of the souls of little children.

When she keeps in communication with God, her love is divine and flows from the heart of God. Her words are like music which steals into the unawakened mind, and her cooing and lullabies awaken dim memories of heaven. When she prays with the children something of her reverence and devotion invades their hearts.

The same thing is true when the father prays. Thomas Carlyle in "Sartor Resartus," has this to say: "I saw the highest I knew on earth bow in reverence to the Highest in Heaven. An indelible impression was made upon his mind and heart, and he was taught to relate the smallest to the Highest."

Conversation Important.

The conversation of the home contributes to its atmosphere. "Out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh." What we are revealed in our conversation. Children understand the place of religion in the life of their parents. The conversation of the home should help the child mind to relate all things about him to God. We are told that Millet, pointing to a glorious sunset, said, "Son, God is yonder." When Moses' mother held him in her arms, she must have told him about the arms of God being underneath him, for he wrote in after life "Underneath are the Everlasting Arms."

Sometimes mothers and fathers make the mistake of presenting God as a policeman to the child. You had better be good, for God sees you and everything you do." The child's gets the impression that God snoops around and interferes in people's business.

In relating the family to God, it is impossible to overemphasize the importance of family worship. I have already mentioned the influence of the father and mother upon the child mind and heart. Family worship should be confined to the home; it should be taken into the church. I want to say a word in praise of the family pew. I think it is very important for the family to attend church and to worship together there.

We are departing from that today. I was pastor of a certain church for four years, and one of the memories I treasure is the opportunity of standing in the pulpit Sunday after Sunday looking into the earnest faces of the father and mother and into the eager faces of the five children. They were regular in their attendance and always occupied the same pew. The father crossed the mystic stream a few years ago, the sons and daughters are separated far and wide, but something was built into their lives which will abide throughout eternity.

Windows and portions of a rear wall were blown out by the first blast at the Citizens' branch on the far northwest side. Debris was piled high, with the main side of the building, protected by a separate concrete wall, was untouched. Thirty minutes after the first explosion, another bomb landed on the east side branch. The building was undamaged, but the fronts of eight automobiles parked in the rear were blown out, and others were showered with glass.

The entire Milwaukee police force was ordered to comb the city for an automobile that sped from the scene of the first explosion and was reported seen dashing from the second.

'Meanest Man' Takes Blind Victim's 30 Cents

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A man booked as Sidney Desporte, 23, a relief worker, was arrested today on a charge of robbing a blind merchant of 30 cents.

Morris Miller, 59, blind operator of a second-hand store, said he was jingling change in his hands when someone shoved him, causing him to drop the money to the floor.

Mrs. Miller said that when her husband called for help she came into the store and saw a young man picking up the money. She said he struck her after she sought to stop him and fled down the street. Police later arrested Desporte who they said had been identified as the robber by Mrs. Miller.

ish member, that the candidacy of Governor O. K. Allen for the United States was not "bona fide."

Governor Allen, chairman of the state committee, surprised the state administration when he announced his candidacy and the candidacy of Lewis Marzan for the governorship. Administration circles interpreted it as a coup to hold the previously endorsed administration candidates in line. Looney contended Governor Allen did not intend to be an active candidate.

DIVERSITY OF OPINION

As emblematic of the diversity of opinion that exists between leaders of the G. O. P. regarding the choice of a standard bearer in the 1936 campaign, the recent blast of William Allen White, noted Kansas editor and publicist, aimed at several leading aspirants for the place, and his selection of Senator Borah as the republican Moses, stirred Ed Howe, "The Sage of Potato Hill," another well-known Kansas editor, to direct one of his barbed shafts at Borah, while singing a song of praise for Governor Alf Landon, Kansas' "favorite son" aspirant for leadership of the republican party.

"Borah is too old and wishy-washy, and Frank Knox has no record. Hoover is mighty selfish if he wants the nomination again," says Howe, who predicts that if Landon is nominated he will get the normal 1928 republican vote, plus a big block of dissatisfied democrats.

"Americans are tired of politics and politicians," Howe holds. "They want a man's man, a clean man, a decent, upright man who smells of the soil and possesses a few reliable 'horse-and-buggy' virtues. I submit Alf Landon. You'll not find him a grandstander like Roosevelt, a back-slapper like Harding or a do-nothing like Hoover, but he'll get things done in that quiet, unobtrusive way of his."

"The Sage of Potato Hill" continues at great length to extol the virtues of his candidate, and settles the entire matter, so far as he is concerned—but instead of doing anything to promote harmony in the G. O. P. ranks he has merely added to the discord.

Editor Howe believes there will be two main issues in the next campaign—economy and the constitution—and adds there may be a third, which he fails to specify, which relegates him to a position with the rest of the heavy thinkers of the G. O. P. who are unable to devise a program to supplant the New Deal.

It will be easy for the republicans to go into the campaign with a platform calling for economy and "save the constitution," but that will get them no votes. They might just as well sum up the entire platform in one sentence; something like: "Anything to defeat Roosevelt; we want to get back into office."

If the republicans can devise some plan that is better than the New Deal they have a chance, otherwise they may as well save their money, time, and the hurt feelings of their candidates for president and vice president.

PROFITS FROM HOGS

Evidence continues to pile up that the Georgia farmer who diversifies his farm activities, not depending upon any one crop for the cash necessary to conduct his farm operations and support of his family, is the one who continues to succeed, despite the handicaps of abnormal conditions.

is ready to gradually grow into hog production. There are good droves of pure-bred animals scattered all over the state from which fine basic stock may be secured at reasonable prices. We have several packing houses which are anxious to buy Georgia-raised hogs, and because they cannot secure enough to keep their plants running are forced to import animals from other sections.

There is ample market at fair prices for good stock, but it must be remembered that the animals brought to market must be of high grade. The poor specimens are not desired, and if purchased bring a low price. Those who have been in the hog production business long enough to have experience have found that it costs no more to raise high-grade hogs than low grade, after a start has been made; they are no more trouble, and in the end, they bring a better price.

The wise farmer will add a pure-bred sire and a few high-grade sows to his farm stock, and thus soon have another source of income to add to the cash his other crops bring him.

TO FIGHT COMMUNISM

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower in Detroit, who became famous as the "radio priest" in building up a huge following by advocating his particular ideas of how the government of the United States should be conducted, has apparently switched his activities to head a movement of some real worth to the country, by organizing an anti-communistic school, the first institution of its kind in the United States.

Recently 200 children stood with arms outstretched in the form of a cross in the tiny classroom of St. Theresa's parish school in Royal Oak, Mich., and with childish voices solemnly repeated the following oath to hate the "red flag" of communism:

I pledge myself in the presence of God and my classmates, to hate communism, but to love communists, as Christ loved His executioners on the cross. I pledge myself to do all in my power to destroy communism. If necessary, I will surrender my life as Father Pro, our patron, did, rather than obey the dictates of Karl Marx and those who hate our country and our church.

Father Coughlin expressed the hope that the school ultimately would become the cornerstone of a nationwide drive against the red menace. "The only way to overcome the teaching of communists," he said, "is to establish new schools where we can combat their activities."

Undoubtedly communistic doctrines are being taught in many of our schools, colleges and universities, and it is a well-known fact that communistic schools have been established in many centers of the United States under direction of the Third Internationale (Russian) communistic comintern in which adolescent youths and our mature "parlor pinks" are instructed in the beautiful (?) theories of Russian bolshevism.

In addition to this, it is also well known that communist propagandists have positive orders to invade the ranks of organized labor for the purpose of fomenting strikes, creating discontent among workers and harassing employers—all for the purpose of eventually overthrowing the present form of United States government and setting up in its stead the so-called communistic regime that exists in Russia, which, instead of being communistic as it started out to be, is as remorseless a dictatorship as ever existed.

Any serious and substantial move that is made to combat the growing menace of communism in this country will receive the plaudits of those who have faith in our government, and Father Coughlin's organization will likely grow to large proportions with communists of the Catholic church. The appeal of the movement would be general if made on a non-denominational plane.

World's Window
BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Adawa Has Fallen.

ADDIS ABABA—Addis Ababa knows that Adawa has fallen and is not showing any worry about it. When you read that Adawa has fallen and Adawa and Makala, that is the moment when things will begin to look serious for Ethiopia. But my guess is that the war on the northern front will be halted for a long time and that the main push will come from the south before long. The time being, till November possibly, an advance in that quarter will be impossible. It is still raining and the Ogaden desert is a swamp, across which not a single army could move forward. I further think that General De Boas on decreeing a halt on the northern front intends to transfer a good deal of his troops overland to Massawa, then by ship to Mogadishu in Italian Somaliland and launch a blasting attack there in about the beginning of December or earlier if he can have his men in good time. Mussolini's orders were to break through at all costs in the south, with sledge-hammer blows, if necessary. In the end, it is the decision will have to fall. Of course peace may intervene in the meantime. It is much to be hoped.

Dying Like Flies.

From what I hear around me, for I am not yet at the front—and nobody else is for that matter, not even the Eritrean front—the Ethiopians are showing a remarkable disdain of death. They throw themselves in mass numbers into the Italian death-dealing machinery. We will never know and the world will never know how many Abyssinians lost their lives. We will never know how many Italian soldiers died either, for the Italian press won't tell us. That press is muzzled and the war correspondents are allowed to send only favorable news. Perhaps one of the following, the other side of the line will publish a document on the line of "Now It Can Be Told" after the hostilities have ceased. But who will be interested? After these hostilities, whatever their outcome, there will be many and great new problems facing the world.

No Gas Yet.

The rumors that gas was used by the Italians on the southern front are now denied, in Rome naturally, but even in Addis Ababa it is now said that the rumor was a good one. The thought is too awful to entertain. The matter raises once more the question of news from Ethiopia. All the world has had so far is the word of the Italian press. It knows anything definitely, except the government and it is giving out but one meager communiqué, once a day. The correspondents may as well write this communiqué as best they can.

This could have been foreseen months ago. A nation at war controls the news. It is going to be the matter was so crazy that the correspondents, listening in on the radio broadcasts from Rome were actually sending out the Roman version of events from Addis Ababa. To this the government put a stop. Rightly, in my estimation, even though it more than before, it is roundly abused more than before. But this is monopolized by the command for military purposes. Send us a little headline, please? (Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution.)

Oranges Cause Suit.

Luscious oranges, which grew beside the Wesleyan church in Kinston, South Africa, have been the innocent cause of lengthy litigation by the minister against his congregation. The state at issue was: Who had the right to eat oranges that grew in the churchyard—the minister, or the church management committee? The minister brought the first claim, in court, but the management committee are now tackling the problem from another angle. They are going to call an extraordinary general meeting of the congregation and take a vote to decide whether the minister can eat all the oranges growing in the churchyard.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
BY PAUL MALLON.

ELIMINATION WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The latest subterranean line on Herbert Hoover's intentions has been obtained lately by top republican persons. The information is that he is bent on building up a balance of power at the next convention for two purposes: (a) To insist that certain principles be included in the platform, and (b) to see that someone like Senator Borah does not get the nomination.

The big boys seem to feel certain that this is the situation because it fits in with what they know. For instance, they have checked around the country on Mr. Hoover's possibilities for their own information. They are convinced that, if he goes into the market for southern delegates (who come high these days), his maximum possible strength at the convention would be 200 delegates. If he does not enter that expensive market, he will be far weaker. In either event, he can be a factor but not a nominee.

PREPARATION Some of the delegations to the convention are already as good as pledged, although the convention is eight months away. You may mark off New York for Snell, Illinois preponderantly for Knox, Kansas for Landon, and (mark you well) Michigan uninstructed.

This does not mean Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, has been eliminated. On the contrary, private persons for his stock have been bullish lately. They figure that, if the convention devolves into a scrap between Senator Borah and the rest of the republican world at large, Mr. Vandenberg will have made no enemies, particularly not in Senator Borah's camp.

44 PER CENT New Dealers are toying backstage with a sharp new housing idea. It was put forward in one of those little blue books (third volume) recently prepared by Professor Moley's friend, Allie Freed. He appears to be backed in this instance by American Rolling Mills, Firestone Tire, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Westinghouse and several others equally important.

This third blue book volume has been submitted confidentially to leading officials, "counseling" government backing for a privately built, low cost ($3,000) housing program, based on 44 per cent mortgages, 10 per cent down, with a 90 per cent government guarantee for which only one-quarter of one per cent would be charged.

It may give the 6 per cent mortgage bankers the jitters to contemplate such a reduction in interest and down payments, but at least two big New Dealers are already behind the project.

You may hear much more of this shortly.

FALSE ALARM Miscellaneous tax receipts have been sliding for 60 days in the treasury daily statements. As a result, stories have gained wide circulation that business is easing up. A couple of congressmen have hinted as much publicly. The truth seems to be almost exactly opposite.

If you dig into it, you will find that nearly every item of excise taxation has increased. The decrease in the total is due to two factors, a sharp decrease in capital stock tax receipts and the repeal of the bank excise. The decrease in capital stock taxes is due to a new regulation permitting delay in payments. In the end, they will probably amount to more than last year.

The only business taxes showing any significant decrease during September and October are those on autos and accessories. That is due to the pre-season lull. If the number of cars now being sold around here is any indication, government revenues from this source will be far more than estimated before the end of the year. One local dealer has sold 50 per cent as many cars during the last three weeks as during the whole of last year.

The rest of the excise taxes are running generally about 10 to 15 per cent above last year, which is exactly how business is running.

IMPROVEMENT President Roosevelt looked much better after his vacation. He was not only bronzed, but it appeared that he had been required to let his belt out a notch or two. More obvious was the improvement in his disposition. He had been rather sharp and sarcastic on occasions before he began his vacation.

Note—The President got all the fish-catching publicity during his trip by sending his 134-pound sailfish to the museum. Unheralded and unnoticed was the fact that his bodyguard, Gus Ganerich, caught one 16 pounds heavier, which will not be mounted in a museum.

TAKE New Deal politicians' apprehensions about Georgia have been lessened by private word from a most influential Georgia leader that he can "take" (his word) Talmadge any time the New Deal wants him.

It also warns pullers for their own welfare to refuse to run fast for the inducement of a little extra pay. The pullers are complying.

PANTELIERIA
—Italy's Gibraltar—

A simmering old volcano, jutting up out of the quiet blue Mediterranean between Sicily and Africa, may burst into sudden flame if the threatened eruption of war should come, for it is Italy's "little Gibraltar," Pantelleria island.

"Armies and navies under half a dozen more flags have fought for Pantelleria, tiny and rough, but standing proudly almost square in the middle of the 90-mile bottleneck of the Mediterranean where all steamer traffic must pass from Gibraltar to Suez," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

BATTLEGROUND

"The Italian flag waves over Pantelleria now, and it occupies just as strategic a position as when Carthage and the Romans fought there more than 2,000 years ago. Press dispatches report that it has been strongly fortified."

"The 2,700-foot volcano that forms the center of the island is the island's now quiet. Volcanic fires still simmer, however, deep down in Pantelleria's rocky bosom, as though symbolic of her turbulent past, and make their presence known through hot mineral springs and a few steaming fissures in the rocks."

"Pantelleria is a mass of volcanic rock thrust up from the Mediterranean bed in some recent time by volcanic forces. There have been volcanic eruptions under water not far from its shores in recent times while the well-known volcanoes, Mt. Etna in Sicily and Mt. Vesuvius at Naples, are still active not far away."

POPULATION IS

LESS THAN 10,000

"With about twice the area of Manhattan Island, New York City, Pantelleria is half the size of Malta, British island base 130 miles away to the east. It is 62 miles from southwestern Sicily and only 44 miles from the coast of Africa. Its inhabitants number less than 10,000 and a penal colony has been maintained there since 1834."

"Prehistoric tribes of Neolithic men lived on Pantelleria, for remains of their huts, pottery and obsidian tools have been found. Later, Carthaginian forces occupied the island and built a stronghold on twin hills near the present port. Later still the Romans came in 255 B. C., were driven out the next year, but reconquered the island in 217 B. C."

ENEMIES' EXILE

BANISHMENT, RETREAT

"About 700 A. D. Arabs landed on Pantelleria and annihilated the island's Christian population. They held it for 400 years, until driven out by Sicilian forces. Then a Spanish fleet captured the island in 1511. In 1553 a Turkish army sacked the town."

"Among the sights of Pantelleria is its 'crater lake,' a body of water 90 feet deep, the crater of the old volcano. The lake is surrounded by a wall of American's Crater Lake on Mt. Mazama, Oregon."

WINES, RAISINS

ARE EXPORTED

"The island covers the island's broken hills, while olives, figs, grapes and vegetables are grown in the fertile volcanic soil of its valleys. Wines and raisins are exported."

"Pantelleria can be seen from a Sicilian mountain peak, San Salvo, on a clear day, and from earliest time it served as a landmark for vessels sailing between Carthage and Sicily and as a way station and supply point for Phoenician navigators bound for Carthage and Spain."

Kruger's Millions.

The famous Kruger millions—the funds of the Transvaal republic which were deposited during the Boer war in Holland—have been shipped to Holland. It has hitherto been believed that Kruger, president of the Transvaal, buried them in South Africa as he fled from the advancing British army.

Now Carl Hens, an old German settler, has announced he helped to ship them to Holland in 1900 on board the German steamer, Konig, says a Reuter dispatch from the Cape of Good Hope.

It was in that year that Kruger himself fled to Holland, where he spent most of the remaining years of his life at Utrecht.

Hens, who has been more than 45 years in Africa, states that from 1896 to 1904 he was a ship's chandler in Lourenco Marques. One day, towards the close of the year 1900, he alleged, he was the manager of the Nederlandsche Bank in Lourenco Marques, and he was asked by the use of two boats used in his business as ship's chandler.

At midnight a hundred boxes, weighing about 300 pounds each, were loaded into his boat and carried across to a German ship.

Hens declares emphatically that the boxes he carried over to the Konig had been sent from Pretoria, and contained the funds of the Transvaal republic. He says that the manager of the Nederlandsche Bank, whose name he cannot remember, but whose chief feature was a huge beard, told him that the boxes contained gold. The nature of the packing and the weight of the boxes confirmed that belief.

Hens swears that the name of the captain of the Konig was Sobel, and that one of the officers was Meisling.

10,000 Wild Geese Battle for Lives In Dangerous Niagara Air Currents

Spectators Held Spellbound as Birds Fly Upstream Two Miles and Alight on Water To Be Carried Back Toward Dangerous Cataract.

By KENNETH R. MACDONALD.
 NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 27. (UP)—Blinded by giant floodlights and bewildered by the mighty roar of the Niagara Falls, huge flocks of wild geese battled for their lives tonight in the cold, swirling waters of the Niagara river.

Massed 30 abreast in a two-mile column, the geese would ride the current to the brink of the falls and then fly back upstream, where the water would catch them again and start them back toward the falls.

Hundreds of persons lined the American and Canadian shores of the river, unable to help the geese. It was estimated that the flock numbered at least 10,000.

Slowly but surely the geese were tiring from the ordeal, and it was feared they soon would be so exhausted that the current would sweep them to almost certain death over the mighty cataracts.

The birds apparently were too frightened to fly to safety. Lacking a leader that would take them from their precarious course, the geese repeated the same maneuvers time and again as conservation officials stood by trying to map out a plan to save them.

An attempt was made to scare the geese from the river, but it only frightened the wild fowl still more.

The scene held spectators spellbound. As the various colored electric lights were turned on the falls, the birds appeared to change color as they rose from the brink of the falls through the mist coming from below.

They would fly straight up in the air, and then instead of going forward to safety, they would fly back to join the flock riding the swirling waters.

Below the falls, William Hill, veteran river man, was aboard his boat, ready to pull in any geese swept over the cataracts. Spectators reported that some geese had gone over the falls, but there was no way to check the report as Hill remained on his boat.

Conservation officials believed the only manner in which the geese could be saved would be to lure them from the river. Decoys were sent for, but because of the darkness little hope was held they would work successfully until daybreak. By that time the geese will have perished, it was feared.

The single hope appeared to be to attract the geese to a new course by placing the decoys under lights.

The birds, driven off their course southward by storms, landed exhausted on the Canadian side of the river at dawn today. Soon a few of them flew into the water. The rest followed and the endless chain began.

The brilliant lights were turned on the falls early in the hope it would frighten the geese sufficiently to make them fly high above the danger of the falls. But the lights apparently only blinded them, for when they rose from the brink of the falls, they would soar around in circles for a few minutes before heading upstream.

As the night wore on, the birds had to struggle more and more to lift themselves from the water as they reached the brink of the falls.

NIAGARA RIVER CALLED "NATURAL" TRAP FOR BIRDS

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27.—(UP)—The Niagara river is a "natural trap" for geese and other birds, Gardner Bump, superintendent of game, New York State Conservation Department, said tonight.

The river is wide enough to attract migratory birds and wide enough so that a tremendous rush of water over the brink of Niagara Falls sets up a current of air through which the birds cannot fly.

He suggested scaring the birds away from the river, as the only solution.

"As far as I know," Bump said, "the Niagara river is the only such trap in the country. The birds are carried by the swift current close to the brink of the falls before they realize their danger. Then, despite their tremendous powers of flight, they cannot rise above the air currents which the falls set up."

"I think it is the air currents, rather than the exhaustion which affects the birds."

TWO PEDESTRIANS DIE HERE OVER WEEK-END

 One of the seven simple rules for safe driving, traffic experts say, J. Fred Monroe, of Smyrna, Ga., was found unconscious in his wrecked automobile, on the Marietta highway, a mile north of the Chattahoochee river bridge early yesterday morning by two motorists. The machine was leaning against a telephone post into which it apparently had crashed.

Monroe was brought to Grady hospital by G. W. Jones, of 443 Fourteenth street, and A. F. Massa, of 332 Fourteenth street. He was treated and dismissed early last night.

J. R. Kirby, attached to the aviation corps of the fourth corps area and stationed at Candler field, was severely injured at 2:45 o'clock yesterday morning when the automobile he was driving crashed into a telephone pole at Whitehall and Hood streets.

At Grady hospital it was reported that his lower lip had been nearly severed and that he was suffering from severe lacerations and bruises. He was removed to the army hospital at Fort McPherson for further treatment.

Two women were slightly injured late Saturday night in a crash between an automobile and a passenger bus of the Georgia Power Company at Fifth street and Piedmont avenue.

Mrs. Imogene Spinks, of 1206 Monticello drive, daughter of Patrolman W. A. Buck, suffered from shock and bruises and Mrs. Julia Land, of 904 Virginia avenue, N. E., was hurt slightly, police were informed.

Will Moore, driver of a Juniper street address, driver of the automobile, was charged by police with reckless driving. The bus was operated by W. R. Gordon.

DRIVER CHOKED TO DEATH WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS
 LEXINGTON, N. C., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Robert Harvey, 30, veteran worker of Linwood, N. C., choked to death, Coroner J. R. Terry said, when the windshield frame of the automobile he was driving came to rest across his throat when the car overturned on a farm road seven miles from here early today.

Lige Gobble, a companion, said he was rendered unconscious but later regained his senses, crawled from beneath the car and ran to a farmhouse for help. He said Harvey was dead when the car was lifted from his body.

CONVENTION OPENED BY PRISON OFFICIALS

"As a result men were returned from prison to society physical, moral and mental wrecks."

The warden stated that we must forego the idea that retribution is the sole aim of our so-called correctional institutions.

"We must apply to what little spark of decency there may be left in our transgressors the stimulus of courage, and through humane treatment and understanding bring them to paths that may lead them to better, cleaner and more honorable lives," Lawes said.

He added that prisons of "every type should be administered under rigid disciplinary rules" and "there should never be a relaxation of vigilance." At the same time, prisoners should be built up morally and physically and given a useful trade, he said.

Following Lawes, Rabbi David Marx said:

"Custom states us, that's why we can look at the chain gang without quivering. Respectability is so respectable that it refuses to organize for respectability."

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, wife of the commander of the Volunteers of America, and for 40 years a prison worker herself, told the congress in her prepared address "it is not the prison which stains men, but the evils of the world at large."

"It is as much up to the public how he makes good as it is to the prison that has done the initial work of inspiring him with new hope and courage," she said.

Mrs. Booth said she was not asking the public "to welcome back the dangerous gangster and the unrepentant wrongdoer."

Governor Eugene Talmadge and Mayor James L. Key are expected to address a joint session of the prison association and the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies, also meeting at the Biltmore, at 8 o'clock tonight. E. L. Rainey, chairman of the Prison Commission of Georgia; President Ashe, and B. L. Coulter, president of the National Conference of Juvenile Agencies, also will speak.

Haile Selassie Fast as Warriors Gorge Themselves With Raw Meat

312 Cattle Slaughtered for Gigantic Banquet; Little Monarch Dallies With Vegetables and Tea as Monster Meal Is Served 50,000 Primitive Soldiers.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Fifty thousand fierce warriors gorged themselves with raw meat before Emperor Haile Selassie today, but the little monarch ate none.

Instead he dallied with a plateful of vegetables and sipped a glass of tea to show the fighters he was with them.

The monster feast was served in relays to five armies of 10,000 warriors each, 312 cows having been slaughtered for the banquet.

Afterwards the Negus addressed the primitive soldiers, calling upon them again to "show true scriptural hospitality, courtesy and kindness to all foreigners in the land."

A Reuter's dispatch from Addis Ababa said Ethiopian commanders on all fronts had been warned to expect a general Italian offensive tomorrow, the anniversary of the fascist march on Rome.

Ras Seyoum, the Ethiopian commander in the north, informed the emperor troop movements along the Addis-Aksum-Adigrat line indicated such an offensive was imminent. A message also was received from the commander at Gorahel, in the south, saying he expected an Italian attack momentarily.

(From Harar, Reuter's reported fears were current that the attack on Gorahel already had begun with destruction of the wireless station, since the station had not been heard from for 24 hours. Normally it communicates with Harar twice daily.)

Ethiopia and the United States, meantime were brought a step closer today with establishment of the first direct wireless communication between Addis Ababa and Washington.

With multiple aerials strung in the tall eucalyptus trees about the American legation, four husky navy operators succeeded in contacting all important American land and naval stations.

The Washington signals, however, were somewhat weak, necessitating the strengthening of the apparatus here.

This emergency wireless was established as a precaution against Italian bombardment of the government radio station.

Partly cloudy and somewhat warmer is the weather prediction for Atlanta today.

Temperatures ranged from a maximum of 75 degrees to a minimum of 42 degrees yesterday. Forecaster George W. Auld predicts a similar range today.

The drouth, which ran from September 12 to October 13, will be broken again today in north Georgia by light showers, he said. No rain is predicted for the Atlanta area.

L. S. U. on Spot Saturday Against Surprising Auburn Tigers

The October harvest has been very, very large. Yes, sir, very large. November will find just one undefeated and untied eleven in the ranks of major teams in the south. People who were dreaming about the Rose Bowl two or three weeks ago are back to earth again. Only the North Carolina Tarheels march on without defeat or tie to mar their record. Until this cock-eyed season burst upon us, one would have said that North Carolina, after beating Tennessee, was a cinch bet to go through undefeated. And the odds are they will. North Carolina State, V. M. I., Duke and Virginia remain on their schedule. The Tarheels should take those four teams in stride. And again they may not. This football season has all the prophecies, seers and soothsayers on the verge of drink or suicide.

But even so, the Tarheels remain the only team with a chance to go undefeated. John Snavely will do some worrying about the North Carolina State and Duke games. The rest of the coaches in Dixie are all relaxed. They have all lived through at least one defeat. The big idea, of course, is not to let them accumulate.

Only L. S. U. and Mississippi are undefeated in Southeastern conference games. Georgia lost her first conference game Saturday. Vanderbilt met conference defeat from L. S. U. The Vanderbilt offense doesn't seem to be present this year. They will likely have it in gear for Tech. The Jackets, who lost to the Tarheels, have that sort of luck.

GEORGIA AND L. S. U.

Georgia played a very fine game against Alabama and would have won, probably, but for penalties which came frequently and in the amount of 100 yards. Which happens to be all the yards there are on a football field.

And Georgia may be the team to beat L. S. U. The Tigers from Baton Rouge eked out one, as the boys say, from those Vanderbilt Commodores, winning 7 to 2 in Nashville Saturday.

Georgia meets Florida in Jacksonville Saturday and the Bulldogs should take that one easily. The Florida alumni, or rather some unusually pious groups, have harassed the present coaching staff which has little material with which to work. And this has had its effect. They prove once more that often the worst thing a school can have is alumni. At any rate, Georgia should take this one with plenty of reserves in there.

Georgia has a great chance to come back the next week and topple the Tigers. Harry Mehre has a team which is capable of doing the job. The Tigers are just ready for the punch. And if the Auburn Tigers do not do the job Saturday, I rather think the Bulldogs may. The offense at Georgia hasn't really clicked as yet. With two great passers in there, which they did not have against Alabama, the Georgia offense is going to be more and more dangerous as the season goes along.

DUKE'S TWO DEFEATS.

While the season has been rather replete with gasps of surprise, the downfall of the Durham Dukes remains the most astounding event of the fall.

The football reporters have a difficult time with their guesses, but even the Duke coaches missed on their own team. Which frequently happens. Coaches often go for weeks without learning the real strength of their team.

Wallace Wade thought his Duke team the best offensive team he had ever had at Duke. He knew his defense was not as strong as his attack, but he felt that he would score frequently.

Yet in his last two games, his team has not scored a point in losing to Tech and Auburn. The team simply didn't live up to expectations. They are now working to be ready for November and the game with North Carolina. That game really is the only game on their schedule. If they win it the others will be forgot.

BILL YOUNG'S FAINT.

Bill Young, one of Alabama's tackles, suffered a slashed knee in the Georgia game Saturday at Athens. It required eight stitches to close the wound.

Yet when he was carried from the field, few people realized he had fainted. He took a look at the wound, which was open, and saw that the cut went through to the bone. Whereupon Bill Young swooned away.

He is the tackle who missed the Rose Bowl game last year, being operated on at Del Rio, Texas, for an acute attack of appendicitis.

RILEY SMITH.

When Robert E. Lee Dodd was quarterbacking for Tennessee he was the greatest quarterback the Dixie gridirons had ever known.

And not until Riley Smith came along at Alabama has there been one to put beside him. The two of them did everything well. They had a lot of football instinct, which is invaluable to a player and which every first-rate performer has as his greatest asset.

Riley Smith, with a great deal of aid from Jim Whitley and Kay Francis, tackle and center, to mention a few, did a great job with his team in beating Georgia.

Riley Smith and Bobby Dodd will do as nominees in any argument about the best the southern game has produced at the quarterback position. Any nominee must come from the modern ranks. The old-timers didn't have as much to do—or think about—as the boys of the modern era.

LATEST DOG STORY.

The latest dog story concerns a lady, a Schnauzer dog and two small colored boys. The lady was walking with the dog, which is a rather unusual breed and one which is relatively rare in Atlanta.

As she passed two small colored boys sitting on a wall, one of them said: "Lady, what is that?"

"A Schnauzer," said she.

"I tol' you so," said one in triumph to the other. "I tol' you that wasn't no dog."

Bill Terry Likes Pitt Player Barely New Giant Camp

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 27.—(UP)—"Memphis Bill" Terry, manager of the New York National League club, has arrived here to make preliminary arrangements for the Giants' training camp in Pensacola next spring.

Terry, who will be here 10 days, said he was well pleased with Legion field and the ample seating facilities, and said he expects to have many major and minor league teams here during the training period. The Gotham manager will conduct a baseball school for youngsters a month or two before the big leagues report, he said.

Pitt Player Barely Holds Scoring Lead

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(UP)—Frank Patrick, Pitt fullback, just managed to retain the scoring lead among the east's football aces when he scored all his team's nine points against Penn State Saturday.

Records up through the last October Saturday revealed two new challengers close on his heels today. Patrick, the leading field goal boomer of the section, had a total of 56 points, made on seven touchdowns, five points from try after touchdowns and three field goals.

That figure put him just two points ahead of Bobby O'Malley, of Trinity, who added 15 points to his total last week, and Douglas Stone, who piled ten points on top of his previously unrecorded mark of 44.

PAUL CAUSEY TO BE READY FOR FLORIDANS

Harry Harman To Miss Game; Penalties Hurt Bulldog Causey.

By Felton Gordon.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 27.—With Alabama's 17-7 triumph over Georgia now history, the Bulldog coaches Monday will busy themselves with stock-taking and reorganizing as operations looking toward the Florida game and the last half stretch get under way.

Georgia's varsity men will get a preview of the Florida formations as run by the "Red Devils" Tuesday afternoon. The next two days will be spent in rough work with the first-stringers on defense Wednesday and on offense Thursday against a "Red Devil" team impersonating the "Gators." Some time will be spent on offense this week, as the Bulldog attack bogged down in the Alabama contest.

Contrary to the usual rule that the defeated team suffers the most casualties, Georgia probably came out of the contest in better condition than Alabama. Harry Harman, veteran right tackle, is the only Georgia man hurt in the game, expected to be lost against Florida at Jacksonville next Saturday. Paul Causey, left halfback, injured in the Furman game, is expected to be ready for duty Saturday.

After two consecutive hard games Georgia's coaches will find it difficult priming the Red and Black for the clash with Florida. The Gators have one of the best passing attacks in the south, and an excellent left halfback in Chase. The Georgia mentors regard this contest as offering another big test for the Georgia squad.

Coach Harry Mehre plans to stress the necessity for avoiding penalties, which, no doubt, cost the Bulldogs the Alabama game. At least 300 yards of penalties have been called on the Bulldogs in games thus far this season. Many of Saturday's offenses were due to overzealousness and a burning desire to win.

The second team will come in for plenty of action this week as Coach Mehre seeks to strengthen the reserves. Fewer reserves were called into action Saturday than in previous games. However, two full backfields and lines were used.

Rehabilitation Settlement To Get
Final Group of U. S. Homesteaders

Newcomers Will Be Furnished All Household Equipment They Need; Settlers Must Pay Government $20 a Month on "Own Home."

REEDSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 17.—(AP)—The final contingent of homesteaders moves this week into the original rehabilitation settlement planned by the government for persons who have lost their means of livelihood and have been stranded in communities.

There are approximately a score of families to be moved from rambling shacks around long-deserted coal pits, as well as the relief rolls of Preston county, into the recently completed section of neat, white-painted 125 cottages that dot the rolling, picturesque, 1,100-acre Arthurdale project.

Just as their predecessors, who began arriving a year ago last June, the newcomers will be furnished all the household equipment they may need. The government, however, retains title on everything given until payment is received.

The head of the family is promised 30 hours of work weekly at a rate of pay ranging from 55 cents an hour for unskilled labor to 80 cents an hour. The settler agrees to pay $20 a month for the use of the house.

There are no taxes as yet. The land is owned by the government. Critics say $20 a month would not pay interest on the investment if the total cost is prorated to each homesteader. The sponsors say the project is an experiment and that a question of cost is unfair at this point.

So far no policing has been required other than one agent to guard federals property. General Manager G. M. Flynn says the settlers are a big, happy family who get together each Friday night in a dance, and need no special moral supervision.

First the furniture manufacturers blocked location of a factory to supply government furniture. Then the sponsors obtained agreement from a Cleveland subsidiary of General Electric to provide machinery and work for about 50 men if the community would furnish a building.

The community's co-operative association, with the aid of community labor, has built a 240,000 modern factory. But Comptroller General John R. McCarl stopped payment of the final $9,500 holding there was insufficient legislative authority.

The association hopes soon to be able to borrow enough money from the re-settlement administration to pay off the needed money and to get its members to work.

Meanwhile the co-operative is applying this week for a resettlement loan to establish a profit-sharing general store for its members.

waters will be unknown for days, they said.

First Suffering News.

The news was the first to indicate the extent which Honduras suffered in the hurricane which tore across the Central American peninsula last week.

Hardest hit of the Honduran towns is believed to be the northern seaport village of La Ceiba, where an entire suburban area was washed away by the raging Cangrejal river. Other cities completely under water were Choloma, Chamelecon and Progreso.

To Send Aid.

Government officials moved swiftly to meet the crisis and rushed expeditions with medical supplies and food to various interior regions. Other rescue parties left for Chamelecon, where more than 1,000 residents were attempting to find their way across flooded ground to the near-by city of San Pedro, which was believed to have escaped the full force of the storm.

At Progreso, where the flood waters were reported to have reached a depth of 54 feet in some places, inhabitants were without drinking water and officials here expressed concern lest an epidemic break out before medical supplies can reach the city. The Progreso electric facilities failed several days ago, it was said.

The storm struck first several days ago at Nicaragua and then swung northward into Honduras. Storm warnings were posted here, but the main force of the wind veered around the city and there were no indications of the devastation caused in the outlying provinces.

ATLANTA ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION PLANNED

Key Reviews City's History and Urges Appropriate Centennial Program.

Mayor Key yesterday laid plans for observance next year of the 100th anniversary of the founding of Atlanta, and announced he will consider measures to bring about the celebration of the state and nation.

The mayor reviewed the early history of the city, and called attention to the fact that next year is the centennial of the southern metropolis and should be given proper recognition.

Executive plans are in the formative stage, but the mayor indicated that he will select a leading group of citizens to evolve a celebration program which will focus the attention of the state, the south, the nation and the world more forcibly on Atlanta than any other undertaking in the city's history.

"We must plan something appropriate," Key said. "It is a matter for every loyal Atlantan, and not necessarily the duty of the city administration to foster the observance or to attempt to direct it."

This city began 100 years ago next year when Hardy Ivey built the first house near what is now Five Points. From that modest start, the great metropolis of the south has sprung. Its history is full of achievement and progress. We can justly be proud of Atlanta. Glory in her accomplishments, and plan for her future."

Thieves who entered the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Edwards, 57 Lafayette drive, N. E., during the absence of the occupants from the city over the week-end, stole clothing, a shotgun and household effects valued at $110, police were informed last night.

Expedition Is Planned To Rescue
Redfern From Jungles of Guiana

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(UP)—A rescue expedition is being organized to bring Paul Redfern, long missing flyer believed still alive in the jungles of Dutch Guiana, back to civilization before Christmas. William Lavarre, explorer, said tonight.

Lavarre said the expedition will be headed by Major Willis Taylor, army flyer and explorer now stationed at France field, Canal Zone.

Redfern has been missing since August, 1927, when he took off from Brunswick, Ga., on a projected non-stop flight to Rio de Janeiro. Rumors that he was still alive have persisted through the years.

Lavarre said he was convinced as a result of a survey expedition into Dutch Guiana last summer that Redfern, alive but crippled, is being cared for by the mysterious Trio Indians—whom no white man has seen since 1905.

Lavarre said that Major Taylor was obtaining a leave of absence to make the expedition. Accompanying him will be three or four fellow flyers. They plan to make the rescue by air, taking off in a large amphibian plane from Paramaribo, capital of Dutch Guiana, within the next fortnight.

Lavarre said that by airplane the distance is 200 miles to the small Indian town far up a tributary of the Marowine river, where he believes Redfern is.

"The flight could be made in three hours. It will be necessary to follow river courses," Lavarre said. "I have advised Major Taylor that it would be best to drop a man by parachute near the village. The Indians are reported to be friendly. The plane could later return and land on some water reach marked off by the man left behind."

Lavarre said he had discussed a rescue expedition with State Department officials here and they had recommended that an attempt be made.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

As a week-old baby Sugar Friddle is found on Dr. Slem's doorstep and taken to the Lorien Orphanage in Virginia where Sophia Friddle, the superintendent, greets her with "Hello, Sugar." The orphanage is that's as good a name as any other. As she grows older and other children begin to question her about her other name, she runs crying to "Mother" Friddle who says, "Why, you're my baby, aren't you? My name is Friddle, so yours must be too. You're Sugar Friddle. And don't let anybody tell you differently." Sugar helps to care for the younger children but when she reaches the age of 17 the board of directors decrees that she must go out into the world. Kindly Friddle gets her position of nursemaid for Mrs. Dick Locker Le Masters' little boy and Sugar's first four years turn to rosy frolics—until she thinks of leaving "Mother" Friddle, the only mother she has ever known. And Miss Friddle is much worried about Sugar who has grown into a very pretty girl, attractively red-headed. Sugar suddenly remembers Johnny DeVille, her own age, and asks whether he, too, must leave the orphanage. Told that he must go, Sugar wonders what would become of the boy who shared her life. She is going to be a great artist some day, make lots of money and buy for Sugar, his model, the things her orphanage heart desires. Deciding to wink at rules, Miss Friddle brings the boys and girls home with Sugar in her office. Suddenly they are in each other's arms.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Don't worry," her voice shook a little, "I guess I can stand it. Anyway, it's a roof over my head. And maybe if I work hard and take good care of Little Skeeter Mrs. Le Masters may decide I'm not contagious."

"Yo' got grit," Eurasia declared admiringly. "I wouldn't stan' fo' no such hateful doin's effen I putty l'il white girl."

"I have to," Sugar shrugged. "Beggars can't be choosers."

"Mis Janie Lee tell me say yo' salary dollah week an keep," the old darky added with a sniff. "I feels lak tellin' her don' buss herself wid generosity."

Sugar's face fell again. A dollar was a lot of money when you'd never owned a dime in your life. But it wouldn't go very far when you needed so many things. However, she'd have to make the best of it. Mother Friddle had worked so hard to place her. For the old lady's sake she would have to grin and bear it.

"Yo, all git yo' baggage yut 'way while I go de kitchen see 'bout supper," Eurasia turned to go. "I send one de culled boys down clean dis hole all up nice. Don' yo' tech it. All yo' goin' to take keer little Skeeter."

"Thank you," Sugar smiled gratefully. "I'll be up in a few minutes."

Sugar opened the little box and a twisted grin turned up the corner of her mouth. Her baggage! A broken comb, little cracked mirror, a cheese-cloth washrag, part of her cake of soap that was left, and a little package of notes from Johnny with silly drawings on them.

It would be best not to tell Johnny that Mrs. Le Masters had sent her to live with the cowboys in the basement. He would probably lose his head and do something they'd both be sorry for. And it would be best not to tell Mother Friddle, either. It would worry and hurt her so. Better to fib a little than to make the two she loved most of all in the world miserable.

Sugar found an old cloth, wiped the dusty dresser drawers and put her things away. Then she took her little mirror and combed her hair. Her step was heavy when she went upstairs. Eurasia wiped flour from her hands and smoothed her white kinky hair.

"Now we go see l'il Skeeter. He sweeties l'il lamb chile yo' evah see, spite his mean mammy. He pa mighty nice man, though. Mis Janie Lee, she walk all over him cause she got so much money. Worm—I calls 'em."

Sugar, in spite of the fact that she'd made up her mind not to like Mrs. Le Masters, had enough good sense not to gossip. She kept silent while Eurasia led the way upstairs. Sugar was awe-struck with the shiny beauty of the big house. Its carved staircase, deep luxurious rugs and old colonial furnishings took her breath. How happy she could be, if only she were to be treated like a human being.

Down a long gleaming hall Eurasia stopped in front of a door. Sugar looked in and saw a small golden-brown-haired boy hunched, knee deep in toys, in the middle of the floor. He looked up at them out of large, solemn blue eyes.

"Dis yo' new nuss, Skeeter," Eurasia knealt beside him, to pat the curly head. "She come to take Dillie place."

"Hello, darling," Sugar went over and stood looking down at him, a warm smile on her face.

Skeeter studied her carefully for a moment, then he said solemnly: "You ain't nigger, is you?"

"No, I'm white, just like you," Sugar sat down beside him. "And I have a nice, clean face, haven't I?"

"Yo' is piggy dirty, Skeeter," Eurasia grinned at him affectionately. "Speck we have to take brush git yo' clean up."

Skeeter looked startled.

"No! Dat hurt Skeeter."

Sugar touched and took his little dirty hand.

"Indeed we won't take a brush, Skeeter, honey. That's just a little dust and it'll come off so easy. You wait and see! Pretty soon we'll have a nice, warm bath. Did you ever go swimming in the bathtub?"

A radiant grin broke over the lad's slender pale little face.

"You let me fim in de bath tub?"

"Sure," Sugar assured him. "Every day when you have your bath you may go swimming."

"Give Skeeter biff now," he jumped up eagerly.

"Bless my soul!" the darky threw up her hands. "Nevah see dat chile want git clean up befo'. Dat sumpin' new."

"We'll go fishing, too," Sugar picked him up. "Did you ever go fishing in the bathtub?"

Skeeter bounced up and down in Sugar's arms eagerly.

"No catch fish. Me cake a biff. What you name?"

"My name is Sugar. Can you say Sugar?"

Skeeter looked puzzled for a few seconds.

"Shoe—shoe—Shoegar," he said laboriously.

"What's your name?"

"Dick Wocker We Massers, Duncior," the boy replied promptly. "But I just 'Keeter'."

"All right," Sugar laughed and gave him a tight squeeze. "I'll call you Skeeter."

Eurasia stood by, looking on happily. "It easy to see yo' all goin' git along thick as two thieves," she grinned broadly. "Effen he eat for you, Miss Sugar, we all sho be happy. He ain't got de aptite a fiece."

"Wait till you see the nice games we'll play when we eat, Skeeter," Sugar promised. "We'll have so much fun."

"Skeeter cake a biff," He wriggled eagerly.

Eurasia opened a door off the nursery. "Dis he own biff," she explained proudly. "Nobody else evah come neah hit."

"Such a lucky baby, Sugar thought, when she saw the big bathroom."

"His mother is certainly good to him!" she exclaimed, a little dazzled with the luxury. "They've given him just about everything in the world."

"He mammy don't hardly pay no 'tention to him," Eurasia replied darkly. "She all time off playin' bridge, and goin' gal'vatin'. Don' nobody but de black folks pay no 'tention to l'il Skeeter roun' heah. Dillie she taken keer he evah since he bahn. But she lazy, shifless, no good niggah, fillin' he full roll lies an' skeerin' he all time."

Sugar's arms tightened around the little thin body and her throat ached with tears. Maybe orphans weren't so bad off, after all, she thought unhappily. If rich people's babies had everything but love, she was glad she'd been brought up poor, with Mother Friddle to love her. She didn't believe she'd like to be taken care of all the time by dummies—even kind ones.

"Doesn't Mrs. Le Masters ever bathe or feed Skeeter?" Sugar asked then, her curiosity getting the better of her.

Eurasia laughed bitterly.

"Lawd no! Mis Janie Lee ain' nevah got time do things lak dat. She leave all dat to de nuss. She jes come in give him l'il peck on de cheek in de mornin' an' she gone till all hours."

"Skeeter cake a biff," the baby interrupted impatiently. "Skeeter fim in de bath tub."

"All right, lambie," she started to take off his shoes. "We'll get all fixed up and then we'll eat a nice, big dinner. Won't we?"

"Skeeter cake a biff," The child kicked his feet, happily, changing the subject.

"Will you fix what I order for him, Eurasia," Sugar took off Skeeter's rompers. "Or what does he eat?"

"Lawd, chile, yo' all tell me what fix and I do it."

Sugar felt the thin little ribs and knew he hadn't had the proper nourishment. Mrs. Le Masters had left him to the servants and they hadn't known any better than to feed him the wrong things and let him play with his food. She was thankful Mother Friddle had let her take care of the little ones at the orphanage. She knew exactly what a 2-year-old child should eat, and what its daily routine should be.

Eurasia went back to the kitchen, a big broad smile on her grimly black face. In the hall she met Liney, the laundress, and stopped long enough to whisper, "Skeeter new chile crab bread de de breakfast."

MALARIA
IS NOT ACQUIRED
BY DRINKING WATER
CONTAMINATED WITH IT

The popular idea that malaria is caught by drinking water containing malaria germs is a hangover of the centuries of death and sickness from this cause. No one ever what caused it. Within the lifetime of the present generation it has been learned that the only carrier of malaria is the Anopheles mosquito. Experiments have proved that the disease is acquired in no other way. The names of Sir Ronald Ross, of England, and Major Walter Reed, of the United States, will always be remembered for their connection with pioneer work on malaria.

At least 40 ways of treating toothache and other troubles of the mouth have been known to the Chinese. Powders, pills and mouth washes were used, and are used now to some extent. One remedy is made in this manner:

"A bit of garlic is roasted and crushed between the teeth. Then it is mixed with milk and chopped horradish seeds, and the paste is rolled into pellets which are dried and used as pills."

Two other "cures" are in powder form, and are snuffed up the nose! In Egypt, the story of the dentist goes back to a still more distant date than in China.

To stop the "throbbing" of tooth-

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

DENTISTS—OLD AND NEW.
I—In China and Egypt.

An old custom of Chinese dentists was to pull teeth without the help of pincers. Instead of pincers they used their fingers.

We are told that the art of caring for teeth has been practiced in China for more than 4,000 years.

While looking at mummies in the Peabody Museum of Harvard University, Professor Kurt Thoma found that a tooth in the lower jaw of one of them had a little round hole in it. This made him study the jaw more carefully, and under the tooth he found two more holes. They looked as though they might have been cut through the jaw bone while the Egyptian was alive, in order to treat an abscess.

An X-ray picture showed what looked like an abscess chamber in the jaw, and this was so interesting to the director of the museum that he took the jaw apart. Sure enough, he found that the holes led straight to an abscess opening, around the roots of the tooth.

Teeth of other Egyptians mummies have been studied. Many of the teeth were worn down through eating "gritty" food, and this often led to decay. In some cases the result was an abscess.

Present-day dentists and doctors say that an abscess at the base of a tooth is a dangerous thing, and may lead to diseases of several kinds. Usually it comes after the "nerve" has been killed.

If a tooth starts to decay, it should be treated by a good dentist. When that is not done, the decay may bring about an abscess.

Capital Automobile Company Introduces New, Improved Oldsmobile Models

SHARP '35 GAINS SHOWN IN SALES

1936 Cadillac and LaSalle
Also Brought to Public
With Added Features.

With a gain of 31 per cent recorded in the number of units delivered during the first nine months of 1935, the Capital Automobile Company, 830-34 West Peachtree street, this week introduced the new Oldsmobile to the motoring public with fall and winter prospects from 50 to 75 per cent better than last year," according to Elwyn W. Tomlinson, president.

In addition to the new and vastly improved Oldsmobile, for which it is dealer, the Capital Automobile Company is bringing to the public the new Cadillac and La Salle models, for which it is distributor, in models which combine the ultimate in safety, comfort, performance and economy.

The Capital Automobile Company, with which Mr. Tomlinson has been associated ever since its organization in 1929, has grown with its products during the past six years until its present sales volume is approximately $1,000,000 a year. The first nine months of this year, Mr. Tomlinson points out, witnessed the delivery of 1,103 units, as compared with 841 during the corresponding period of 1934.

This remarkable increase in volume, Mr. Tomlinson asserts, is directly attributable not only to steady post-depression gains, but to the markedly increased refinement of the lines, the structural and mechanical improvements and the new achievements in performance by the Oldsmobile, the company's featured car.

In connection with the new models, Mr. Tomlinson states that in addition to the safety, comfort, performance and economy factors which have contributed so heavily to Oldsmobile success in the past, many new refinements of motor, body and chassis have been built into the 1936 cars. Kneecrack wheel, super-hydraulic brakes and the solid "turret top" body have been retained. Safety glass has been made standard equipment in all body types, and, in addition, electro-hardened aluminum alloy pistons provide increased economy of operation and smoother, livelier performance.

Westmoreland, Ray H. Seaver, general manager of the used car division, and Elton Smith.

Scores of other improvements have been built into the new models. Despite these improvements, Mr. Tomlinson points out, new low Oldsmobile prices are as much as $57.50 lower in the delivered price of the eight, and $17.50 lower in the delivered price of the Oldsmobile Six. The prices on the Six range from $865 to $820, while those for the Eight range from $810 to $935.

Mr. Tomlinson, in connection with other business gains, reports a steady gain in volume in the company's special service department, which, while specializing in Oldsmobile service, is open to cars of all makes and models. Increased volume in this department, he states, has necessitated the addition of two more men on the floor—Ralph Cannon, already well known in Atlanta, and Paul Smith, formerly Oldsmobile service manager for the Drennon Motor Company, of Birmingham, Ala.

The Capital Automobile Company maintains a used car department on the lot adjoining its building, where

Williams Printing Company Service Meets Exacting Needs of Business

Users of mimeographed or multi-graphed forms and other matter, for which her is a consistently increasing demand in the transaction of general business, find in the Williams Printing Company the satisfying answer to their most exacting needs.

The Williams Printing Company, situated in the third floor annex of the Rhodes building, 78 Marietta street, is mechanically equipped and expertly staffed for the handling of all forms of specialty printing, including mimeographing, multi-graphing and direct-mail service.

Perfect registration and absolute clarity of every detail—quality workmanship at its best—is the rule rather than the exception with the Williams Printing Company, a standard fully recognized and acknowledged by countless customers who through many years have entrusted their business to this enterprising company. "Our customers," says Jesse R. Williams, proprietor, "have the multiple advantage of quality workmanship, executed with speed, efficiency and a faithful adherence to the highest standards of the printing craft. The Williams Printing Company's personnel is made up of men highly skilled in their work, and its equipment is of the most modern and efficient type, thus assuring our customers that their jobs may be run off the presses as rapidly as is desired, without departure from the quality for which they pay."

Effective printed matter, Mr. Williams points out, is largely the secret of the success or failure of any business enterprise. Whether designed to obtain business or to conduct business, it must be clear in every detail. In the former case it must have the added characteristic of attractiveness. The Williams Printing Company combines every necessary factor in the preparation and production of printed matter, to the

DEPENDON ROOFS MAJOR PROJECTS

Southeastern Fair Buildings Head List of Recent Important Jobs.

Clear-cut recognition of efficiency of application and of dependability and durability of its products is reflected in the fact the Dependon Roofing Supply Company was chosen this year for the tremendous task of re-roofing the exhibit buildings at the Southeastern Fair grounds—a job involving the application of approximately a million and a quarter square feet of roofing.

This job, on which Barrett tar and gravel roofing was laid, was one of the largest of its kind recorded in the southeast in recent years—a contract clearly indicative of the unusual recognition won by this young but enterprising roofing concern during the 18 months it has been in business. This, however, is but one of the major undertakings the Dependon Roofing Supply Company has undertaken in recent months, or has in charge at present. One need scan but a partial list of these major projects to get a clear conception of the popularity of its service and of the products it handles. Some of these, all of which are flat roofing jobs:

The Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation factory on Fair street.

The Southern Dairies plant on Glen Iris drive.

The Bona Allen Shoe Company's huge factory in Buford.

The Luckie street building now undergoing reconstruction, to house Herren's restaurant.

The Hirsch building at 70-74 Whitehall street, between Alabama and Hunter streets.

The federal building at Aiken, S. C.

The Cedarwood (Ga.) city hall and auditorium.

In addition, the Dependon Roofing Supply Company has undertaken the re-roofing and roofing contracts on innumerable residences and apartment buildings, and has successfully completed the contracts for roofing new postoffice buildings in Waycross, Baxley and Dublin, Ga., and in Smithfield and Gastonia, N. C.

In addition to the universally popular Barrett roofing, the Dependon Roofing Supply Company handles the widely favored Old American asphalt shingles and roll roofing, and Koeber-Matton asbestos shingles, both nationally recognized for their qualities of economy and durability. It also handles the well-known Ludowici tile.

R. H. Persons, formerly associated with the Acme Roofing Company of Montgomery and one of the outstanding men in his field in the south, recently has joined the staff of the Dependon Roofing Supply Company in charge of estimating and sheet metal work.

and that it shall serve its user advantageously.

Users of printed matter, in whatever form, are invited to consult with Mr. Williams or others of his staff on the preparation of any type of printed matter. Their long experience in this field equips them to render a valuable service in this respect, and users of printing are learning in daily increasing numbers that here they may obtain the finest quality of work at equitable prices.

Sterchi's Offers Finest In Furniture Restyling

Paul Sillin, interior decorator and director of Sterchi's reupholstering department, is seen here supervising the finishing touches of the upholstery and restyling of a neo-classic living room suite which was completed at the Sterchi store, 116 Whitehall street.

The preservation and reupholstering of cherished heirloom furniture constitutes a specialized service which is offered to Atlantans through the reupholstering department of the Sterchi Brothers Stores, 116 Whitehall.

Countless Atlantans in the past have availed themselves of Sterchi's expert reupholstering service for both modern and heirloom pieces, in each case assured of artistic craftsmanship that is superior in every detail. The discriminating householder, who demands of only fine workmanship but the maximum of beauty in the finished product, knows full well that in Sterchi's reupholstering department he may find the ultimate in each.

Sterchi's reupholstering department service specializes in the modernization of out-moded furniture of all types. A refinishing department, manned by highly skilled craftsmen, makes possible the transformation of old and worn furniture into pieces of beauty. All work is done under the close supervision of an established stylist and decorator of long experience.

Special attention is devoted to the preservation and reupholstering of cherished heirloom pieces. Woodwork on such pieces is tightened and repaired wherever necessary. If refinishing is needed, it is done in an antique manner which emphasizes the aged beauty of the piece.

Covers of the owner's own selection are used for reupholstering after all webbing and broken springs have been replaced and padded with new filler. A wide choice of cover materials is available, thus insuring the proper latitude in the arrangement of any desired color or style scheme.

A call to Sterchi's reupholstering department, Main 3100, will bring a representative to any home, where he will be glad to show the many new fabrics and to furnish an estimate on the reupholstering, repair or refinishing needed.

Sterchi's provides a convenient budget plan under which such work may be done if desired. Mr. Sillin will be glad to discuss this plan with any interested householder.

CATHCART ALLIED STRESSES SAFETY

Goods Moved or Stored
Get Same Painstaking
Care As in the Home.

Exacting and painstaking care—the same care given by the housewife in the creation and furnishing of a new home—marks the moving and storage service of the Cathcart Allied Storage Company, 134 Houston street, N. E., one of the oldest establishments in its field in Atlanta.

Progressive and efficient in every phase of its work, the Cathcart Allied Storage Company renders a highly specialized service which takes the burden of detail from the householders' shoulders and completes any moving job exactly as he or she wishes it done.

The houseowner, Mr. Inglis asserts, should select his moving or storage institution with special care and thought, particularly with respect to dependability, integrity, its facilities and equipment and the efficiency and thoroughness of the service it is prepared to render.

Years of experience have equipped the Cathcart Storage Company to handle the most exacting job capably and efficiently, with absolute freedom from the breakage so frequently caused by less experienced movers. Every piece of household goods is carefully packed or crated, and the same care is exercised in every phase of the moving job.

At its huge Houston street warehouse, one of the most complete in the south, every modern facility is provided for dustproof storage, where sanitation and proper ventilation give added safeguards to the goods entrusted to its hands. Special mothproof rooms for upholstered furniture, rugs and carpets insure absolute immunity from moth infestation. Goods entering or leaving the warehouse are handled on a loading platform in the interior of the building, thus insuring complete protection from the existing elements.

Mr. Inglis invites the public to visit the Cathcart Allied Storage Company warehouse, to inspect its facilities and to investigate the splendid service it is equipped to render.
